

Documentary Credit

WORLD

In This Issue...

■ 3 UPDATES: The Principle of Strict Compliance; Fraudulent Payment Cases Spark SWIFT Action; One Year In, Reserve Bank of India's Framework Fails to Detect Syndicate Bank Fraud; European and Iranian Banks Slowly Connecting; Quote to Note; Beneficiary Controls Expiration of Perpetual LC, Says Court; ABN AMRO to Issue LCs Direct from Singapore; Devaluation Would Further Harm Nigerian Imports, LCs, Says Former Minister; International Updates

■ 8 LITIGATION DIGEST: ShowCase
 ■ "Court Holds that 'Perpetual Irrevocable Letter of Credit' Expires When Beneficiary Approves"
 by Jacob MANNING
 ■ Leary v. McDowell County National Bank
 ■ Newly Decided Cases

■ 26 REPORT:
 Summary of the April 2016 ICC Banking Commission Meeting
 "Trade and Supply Chain Finance: Enabling New Trade Corridors in and with Africa"

■ 36 LC STATISTICS:
 US Branches of Non-US Banks (4Q15)

■ 40 INFORMATION DIGEST

■ 44 SCAM SURVEY

■ 46 LC TRADE NEWS

16 FEATURE

■ SEA CONTAINERS: A PRIMER FOR TODAY'S TRADE FINANCE BANKER
 Compliance does not mean what it used to mean for bankers. Gone are the days when LC specialists were solely responsible for examining documents to determine compliance. Laws and regulations are widening the scope of compliance for banks and bankers. Without taking a position to what extent trade finance bankers need to have detailed knowledge of sea containers, Kim Sindberg offers DCW readers some insights into the common types, sizes, and weights of containers that are used in transport. Having increased awareness of norms in this area may assist in detecting red flags and preventing fraud.

Next Issue of DCW ...

- Standby LC Usage by US Federal Home Loan Banks: Governing Laws & Common Practices
- Year-End 2015 LC Statistics for US Banks